

logo not found or type unknown

CARICOM Observer Team to Monitor Elections in Guyana

Politics / Published On February 25, 2020 05:55 PM /

Staff Consortium February 25, 2020

Image not found or type unknown

GEORGETOWN, Guyana, CMC – St. Lucia-born attorney, Cynthia Cleopatra Combie Martyr, is heading a 14-member Caribbean Community (CARICOM) Election Observer Mission (GEOM) that will monitor the March 2 regional and general elections in Guyana.

The Guyana-based CARICOM Secretariat said that members of the GEOM have begun arriving here for the polls that will also be observed by other regional and international teams including the Organisation of American States (OAS), the Commonwealth and the US-based Carter Centre.

Guyana had extended an invitation to CARICOM to monitor the elections that observers say is a straight fight between the ruling coalition, a Partnership for National Unity (APNU) headed by President David Granger and the main opposition People's Progressive Party/Civic (PPP/C) that was defeated in the 2015 poll.

“The CARICOM Secretariat was ...invited to mount the CEOM, to ensure the transparency of all electoral processes and to invest confidence in the results of the elections,” the Secretariat said in a statement, adding that the other members of the team include persons who work for electoral departments or commissions in Antigua and Barbuda, Bahamas, Barbados, Haiti, Jamaica, St. Kitts and Nevis, St. Vincent and the Grenadines, Suriname and Trinidad and Tobago.

© Viconsortium 2025