ST. CROIX — K'Shawn Wilson faces a felony drug trafficking charge after Customs and Border Protection officers allegedly found 10.63 kilograms of marijuana and two magazines for an AK-47 rifle in his luggage at Henry Rohlsen Airport.

Wilson was traveling aboard American Airlines Flight 2753, which arrived on St. Croix from Miami, Florida, on Sunday.

During an initial luggage inspection, CBP officers reportedly discovered boxes labeled as containing inflatable pool chairs. Instead of the expected items, the boxes allegedly contained vacuum-sealed bags.

Inside the bags, officers found 10.63 kilograms of a leafy substance that produced positive results when field-tested for marijuana.

Authorities also reportedly discovered two magazines for an AK-47 rifle in Mr. Wilson's luggage.

When questioned, Wilson allegedly told law enforcement officers that he had collected the bags from an associate in Orlando who paid him to transport them to a house on St. Croix.

Although he reportedly said he did not inspect the bags' contents, Wilson allegedly told CBP officers that he had participated in similar exchanges before, understood what he was doing and was willing to accept the consequences.

He was arrested and charged with possession of marijuana with intent to distribute.

Wilson later appeared before U.S. Magistrate Alan Teague, who found probable cause to uphold the charge.

He was released on a $25,000 unsecured appearance bond and ordered to comply with standard bail conditions.

His next court appearance has not yet been scheduled.
