

The Virgin Islands Consortium

As Bertha Leaves, Voters Turn Out On St. Croix

Politics / Published On August 02, 2014 09:44 PM /

Ernice Gilbert August 02, 2014

As tropical storm Bertha makes its way out of the territory, voters, especially on St. Croix, as it was affected more than St. Thomas, are getting out to the polls later in the afternoon, a sign that that people are taking this year's primary election seriously.

Visiting various voting places, the mood was optimistic among voters who made the special effort to brave the storm, but it was a slow trickle for most of the morning, and although things had picked up later in the afternoon because the skies cleared, the votes were still low historically.

Here's a breakdown of voter turnout on St. Thomas, courtesy Vlvote.gov:

Add Polls - VIPC — WordF — Edit Post - VIPC — WordP — V.I. Voters Not Letting Storm — VIPC

www.vivote.gov/Election%202014/Call-in%20Count%20-%20Primary%20\(St.%20Thomas_St.%20John%20District\).p

ELECTION SYSTEM OF THE VIRGIN ISLANDS PRIMARY ELECTION - 2014 CALL-IN COUNT (ST. THOMAS/ST. JOHN)

POLLING PLACE	10:00 A.M.	12:00 P.M.	3:00 P.M.	6:00 P.M.	7:00 P.M.
Anna's Retreat Center	76	176	237
Anna's Retreat Center - Prov.		2	2
Addelita Cancryn	58	116	202
Charlotte Amalie - Gym	66	110	190
Charlotte Amalie - Cafeteria	42	65	109
Charlotte Amalie - Provisional	2	2	3
EBO	63	123	200
EBO - Provisional		1	1
Dober - North	29	45	73
Dober North - Provisional	0	1	1
Dober - South	34	69	95
Gomez School	80	206	248
Gomez - Provisional	2	5	6

rainvoting.jpg