

The Virgin Islands Consortium

Tropical Wave Expected To Bring Showers, Thunderstorm To Territory Later Today

VIC News / Published On June 22, 2015 12:22 PM /

Staff June 22, 2015

The Virgin Islands Territorial Emergency Management Agency (VITEMA) has announced that a tropical wave will approach the territory this afternoon.

According to VITEMA, wave is expected to interact with an upper level trough that is expected to enhance the shower and thunderstorm activity associated with the wave. This combination should cause an increase of shower and thunderstorm activity this afternoon and overnight into Tuesday morning.

VITEMA is advising the public to monitor all incoming weather reports.

VI Consortium will be following the developments.

