

logo not found or type unknown

VI-Base Company Announces Platform to Host Paid Livestream Events

Technology / Published On June 27, 2020 07:33 AM /

Staff Consortium June 27, 2020

Image not found or type unknown

PromoTix, a U.S. Virgin Islands-based company providing event ticketing, sales, and marketing services, announced Friday PromoStream, a new ticketed live streaming software platform. PromoStream combines the fee-free ticketing platform of PromoTix, with a secure live-streaming gateway. It offers a new way for event organizers, instructors, and anyone looking to sell tickets to their live stream, to do so with less work and a more seamless organizer experience.

PromoTix was created by event organizers and promoters, for event organizers and promoters, according to the release. The company said its core value and mission statement is to create more memorable experiences for people by helping event organizers throw more successful and profitable events. Amid the pandemic, the startup wanted to create a platform that not only offers fee-free ticketing, but also safe and secure live-streaming. On top of that, it has the fastest latencies in the world of just 1.x seconds around the globe.

“Ticketing companies have become complacent offering a commodity based technology for incredibly high fees driving up costs for organizers, and prices for consumers. It’s time to eliminate that from the industry,” said Will Royall, founder and CEO, PromoTix.

Features and benefits of PromoStream include:

- Start streaming with as little as $19.99
- Ticket your event with 0% Ticket Service Fees
- All-in-one secure ticket and streaming service (no zoom bombers!)
- Fast latency of 1.x seconds around the world
- Daily payouts with Stripe

PromoStream was available now, and event organizers can start streaming for as little as $19.99.

© Viconsortium 2025