

The Virgin Islands Consortium

Man Arrested After Breaking Into Home Of Ex-Girlfriend

Crime / Published On July 17, 2017 12:25 PM /

Staff July 17, 2017

ST. CROIX -- A man was jailed after he broke into the home of his ex-girlfriend twice, V.I.P.D. Public Information Officer Glen Dratte announced recently.

The female victim reported the incident on July 13 at approximately 6:50 a.m. She told police that the suspect, identified as Karim Jordan, 37, gained entry to her home by damaging the louvers on one of her windows, and inserting his hands through the damaged window to unlock the door. The victim was in the house with her two minor children at the time.

He had broken into the victim's home the day before, on July 12, while the victim was out with her children, according to Mr. Dratte. The victim met Mr. Jordan in her home at about 8:09 p.m. that night. The suspect had no permission to enter the victim's residence.

Mr. Jordan was charged with second-degree burglary. The victim also placed a permanent restraining order on Mr. Jordan. He was later remanded to the Golden Grove Detention Facility pending his advisement hearing.