Senators who make up the 33rd Legislature on Thursday approved 43 measures during a Senate session at the Earl B. Ottley Legislature. Among them was the nomination of Trevor Velinor, Governor Albert Bryan's pick for police commissioner, whose nomination was in trouble following a no-show at a previous session, where senators sought answers on Mr. Velinor's frequent travel outside the territory and an increase in violent crime since the last time he was before the body.

Mr. Velinor made rounds on various media outlets, including the Consortium, in an effort to build support for his nomination ahead of the session.

Still, senators on Thursday spoke on the need for improved public safety, employee morale and more training within the police department, along with community relations throughout the USVI.

"I don't believe he is the right person for this job and voting in the affirmative for Mr. Velinor would mean that I agree that no police officer, past or present, is qualified to lead this Police Department as commissioner," said Senator At-Large Steven Payne, a former law enforcement officer who ultimately voted against Mr. Velinor's nomination.

Under closed rule, senators approved the following measures and sent them to the Governor Bryan for further action:
