Lawmakers on Monday during a Committee on Rules and Judiciary hearing in St. Thomas passed 32 budget bills, and vetted and favorably voted on both of Governor Bryan's nominees for the Superior Court of the Virgin Islands.

Mr. Bryan nominated Attorney Sigrid M. Tejo-Sprotte for the Superior Court in the St. Thomas-St. John District, and Attorney Alphonso G. Andrews to the district of St. Croix. Both attorneys are natives of St. Croix and served as U.S assistant attorneys general, and have decades of experience between them.

Ms. Tejo-Sprotte attended St. Dunston's Episcopal High School and graduated from Manor School. Upon graduation, she went to Stetson University in Florida, where she graduated with a master's in education in 1991. In 2000, Ms. Tejo-Sprotte noticed she had a passion for law and decided to apply for law school. Soon after, she was accepted to the Franklin Pierce Law Center, known today as the University of New Hampshire Law School. She graduated with her law degree in 2003 at the institution.

In 2009 Ms. Tejo-Sprotte returned to the Virgin Islands, where she accepted a job with the V.I. Department of Justice's Office of Collective Bargaining as an assistant attorney general of labor. Later on, she transitioned to the U.S. Attorney's Office, Division of St. Thomas and St. John. In 2019 she accepted the position as director of the White Collar Crime unit at the V.I. D.O.J.

"I would also like to thank the governor for having confidence in my ability to serve this community as a judge of the Superior Court," said Ms. Tejo-Sprotte. "I believe that my knowledge, experience, and strong work ethic will allow me to contribute significantly to assisting the Superior Court in achieving its mission of protecting the rights and liberties of all litigants that come before it."

Along with his fellow nominee, Attorney Andrews was born and raised on the island of St. Croix. He attended Central High School and graduated from the College of the Virgin Islands in 1975, now known as the University of the Virgin Islands.

Upon receiving his law degree from the University of Maryland in 1986, Mr. Andrews clerked for Judge Raymond L. Finch. Soon after, Mr. Andrews served as an assistant attorney general for the V.I.D.O.J.. One year later, he joined the U.S. Attorney's Office as a federal prosecutor.

In 1994, Governor Alexander A. Farrelly nominated Mr. Andrews to the territorial court bench where he served a six-year term. Mr. Andrews returned to the U.S Attorney's Office in 2001, and is currently serving as deputy criminal chief.

"I am extremely humbled and thankful for the rare opportunity to serve my community," said Mr. Andrews. "If confirmed, I would aim for excellence and be ever conscious of the send of awe of the power exerted by a judge and of the importance of every decision regardless of the status of the parties involved."

After the committee favorably voted on the governor's nominees for the Superior Court, lawmakers continued the hearing by moving along with the budgetary process. They voted and passed 32 measures from the Committee on Finance reviewed during budget hearings. These bills will be moved to the full body for further consideration adopted with a close rule condition. The close rule condition means no amendments may be offered other than amendments recommended by the Committee of Finance.

The Committee of the Whole will consider the following bills:
