

logo not found or type unknown

Daughter of Attorney General Denise George Awarded $70,000 No-Bid Contract at Height of Pandemic to Attract Visitors to USVI

Top Stories / Published On March 15, 2021 05:30 AM /

Ernice Gilbert March 15, 2021

Image not found or type unknown

From left, Attorney General Denise George and daughter Kmisha Victoria Counts. By. VIA FACEBOOK

Kmisha Victoria Counts, the daughter of Attorney General Denise George, was given a no-bid sales representative contract with the Dept. of Tourism worth $70,000 to "represent the USVI as a tourism destination and to increase tourism and travel to the territory from various target market regions in the Continental United States."

That's according to public records on the Property and Procurement website, which also shows the start date of the one-year contract as June 1, 2020, when the world was at the height of the coronavirus pandemic and countries were dissuading travel, or restricting tourism in other ways in an effort to minimize spread of Covid-19. The contract also has an optional one-year renewal clause, which would increase the total compensation to Ms. Counts to $140,000 if the agreement were to be renewed come June 1, 2021.

The contract on P&P, which does not outline a clear directive aside from the short description of attracting visitors to the territory, had to receive a number of signatures before being approved, including a signature from the Dept. of Justice, led by Ms. George, a situation that created an immediate appearance of impropriety even though someone else at D.O.J., Assistant Attorney General Carol McDonald, approved the deal by signing the contract. The contract was also signed by P&P Commissioner Anthony Thomas and Dept. of Tourism Commissioner Joseph Boschulte.

It was not clear why the Government of the Virgin Islands approved a $70,000 sales representative contract to attract visitors to the USVI at the height of a global pandemic. Further unclear is what the sales rep was able to accomplish when much of America was shut down. In California, where Ms. Counts resides, the state was on lockdown on June 1, 2020, the day Ms. Counts's contract with the Dept. of Tourism commenced. And California — which has had some of the most stringent Covid-19 restrictions — remained in various forms of lockdown for months. In fact California to this day has not reopened its public schools, with the earliest date set for April for elementary students.

The contract came at a time when countries were curtailing travel to their destinations. In March 2020, Mr. Bryan ordered occupancy businesses to stop accepting reservations. Bookings were eventually reopened, but were shutdown again in August following another of multiple outbreaks in 2020 in the territory.

Dept. of Tourism Commissioner Joseph Boschulte told the Consortium that Ms. Counts was given the no-bid contract because she has a "great personality, is young and energetic," adding that such traits are what D.O.T. needs when attempting to attract people to the USVI. "Tourism is a people business; one of the most important traits is your personality and whether you like people and you could sell the territory to prospective visitors," Mr. Boschulte said. He said Ms. Counts went through an orientation process with the department.

The tourism commissioner said no request for proposal went out for the sales representative position. "It was a personnel move," he said, adding that D.O.T. had ended contracts with its sales representatives following the passage of Hurricanes Irma and Maria in 2017, and the department has since decided to hire new individuals.

Mr. Boschulte said D.O.T. was attempting to capitalize on a trend that sees young, mostly African American travelers visiting the USVI, between the ages of 27-33. D.O.T. plans on hiring five new salespeople in total, he said.

The contract on the P&P website did not include scope of work. Mr. Boschulte provided the Consortium with a scope of work document that he said Ms. Counts must follow. The document is a general guideline D.O.T. provides its sales reps and was not specific to Ms. Counts. In fact, the document does not include mid-west states as a target area, which Mr. Boschulte said is the region Ms. Counts will be covering.

A source with intimate knowledge of the matter told the Consortium that the department's sales representatives supervisor based on the mainland had not heard from Ms. Counts for months after she was given the contract. The Consortium was unable to determine the current status of communication between Ms. Counts and the sales representative supervisor. Mr. Boschulte, however, said Ms. Counts has been submitting monthly reports. Asked to see the reports, he said the department would not provide the reports as they may include trade secrets.

Asked whether he knew Ms. Counts was the daughter of the attorney general, Mr. Boschulte said he did. "I knew that the attorney general was her mother, but she didn't influence our decision," he said.

Dept. of Property and Procurement Commissioner Anthony Thomas, said once the contract is on the P&P website, it was thoroughly vetted by his office. "A contract becomes valid when I sign it; they call it an execute," Mr. Thomas said. He said his attorney and assistant commissioner of procurement are the ones who "validate the consistency of the contract as it relates to the policies or the laws of the Virgin Islands."

"That is further supported by the evaluation of the Office of the Attorney General," Mr. Thomas said. "So when a contract becomes valid in all its forms then it's consistent with Virgin Islands law."

He later added, "If the contract has on my signature then the contract is a public contract, it is one of the contracts we reviewed for acceptable content and for services to be rendered to the government through the Dept. of Tourism."

Mr. Thomas said he did not know Ms. Counts was the daughter of A.G. George.

The Consortium asked Ms. George whether she saw any ethical issues, including conflict of interest arising from the contract as her daughter is the subject of the contract which had to be approved or denied by the Office of the Attorney General. Ms. George said she saw no conflict of interest as per VI law.

"No. If you examined V.I. conflict of interest laws, you would clearly see that this does not constitute a conflict of interest. This Division of Tourism contract, as other government contracts, was reviewed and approved for legal sufficiency by my office, which review is required by law for all executive branch agency contracts, without my involvement or input," she said. "As it pertains to contracts, V.I. conflict of interest law prohibits a public official or an employee from" being financially interested in any contract made or negotiated by him in his official capacity, or by any public agency of which he is a member." The contract does not violate VI law or any ethical issues as the contract is with Tourism and negotiated with Tourism and my adult daughter, not the DOJ or AG. This contract, as all government contracts, are posted on the Property and Procurement website, transparent, and available for anyone to review."

Asked whether she had any conversations with anyone/staff at the Dept. of Tourism about the contract, Ms. George did not respond to the question, though she responded to another asked in the same email.

Ms. George further stated that her daughter has done business with the Dept. of Tourism in the past, including what she said was an agreement similar to Ms. Counts's current contract that did not come to fruition in 2017 because of the storms.

Governor Albert Bryan told the Consortium he had no knowledge of the contract. He did, however, state that general contracts are reviewed by the solicitor general, not the attorney general. The solicitor general, however, serves at the pleasure of the attorney general.

DOJ Statute

3 V.I.C. § 112

The Department shall be administered under the supervision and direction of the Attorney General.

3 V.I.C. § 114

(4) to investigate violations of the laws of the Virgin Islands for which the executive branch of the Government of the United States Virgin Islands may invoke penalties, fines or forfeitures, or deny, suspend or revoke licenses, and to initiate and conduct appropriate proceedings in relation thereto;

(7) to furnish legal advice to the Governor and all executive departments, boards, commissions, agencies, instrumentalities and officers of the Government of the United States Virgin Islands, concerning any matter arising in connection with the exercise of their official powers and duties, and to supervise and direct the legal business of every executive department, board, commission, agency, instrumentality and officer of the said Government.

The attorney general, according to statute, must supervise and direct the legal business of every agency, department and other instrumentalities. All other agency lawyers in the government are under the attorney general.

Said the governor, "Our procurement system is a multi-layered, check and balance system that reduces malintent. Every contract is reviewed by at least three lawyers in three separate departments before getting to Gov't House, where it is reviewed again by my legal team." A contract that is less than $1 million does not need the governor's signature, Mr. Thomas told the Consortium, which was corroborated by Mr. Bryan.

The Consortium reached out to Ms. Counts for comment, but has not heard back.

On her Facebook page, Ms. Counts identifies as a recording artist, songwriter and actress. She had just over 4,000 followers on Facebook as of Monday. On Youtube, the platform popular for recording artists, her subscriber list had 497 persons as of Monday morning. On Instagram, another popular venue for artists, her following numbered under 4,000.

Her most viewed music video on her YouTube VEVO channel is called Apology, which was published seven years ago and has 40,000 views. "Apology" is followed in popularity by "Let Dem Know" with 22,000 views. Let Dem Know, like Apology, was published seven years ago. Her latest effort, Boundaries, was published on March 2 and had 145 views.