Governor Albert Bryan has expanded his vaccination incentive lottery program by adding a drawing for school-based personnel in public, private and parochial schools, Government House announced during the administration's weekly Covid-19 press briefing Monday.

In addition to the general vaccination drawing for \$100,000 for 10 weeks open to all residents, the government will also sponsor a drawing limited to employees who work in the territory's education system and will feature three cash prizes in each district: $25,000 for 1st place; $10,00 for 2nd place and $5,000 for 3rd place, Richard Motta, Gov't House communications director made known.

The special drawing will take place on August 9 and is open to all school-based personnel who have a work station in one of the territory's schools – including principals, teachers, guidance counselors, cafeteria workers and school monitors – as well as all school bus drivers.

Mr. Motta said the additional drawing is in preparation for the 2021-2022 school year to be 100 percent in-class education.

Unlike the previously announced weekly general drawing, school personnel who want to participate must register so the V.I. Department of Health can verify eligibility, said Gov't House. Registration details will be announced in the upcoming days.

Additionally, as part of this back-to-school effort, the GVI will also be providing additional incentives for minors who get vaccinated prior to the start of the school year and details for that program also will be announced.

USVI 2021 Technology Summit

University of the Virgin Islands President David Hall and William Adams of Microsoft provided information about this week's USVI 2021 Technology Summit, which is a five-day event to help shape the future of technology and access to technology in the territory.

Mr. Hall said UVI will use the former West Bay supermarket on St. Thomas, which UVI has acquired, to create an Innovation Center where UVI students can get firsthand experience using technology. A similar facility also is planned for UVI's St. Croix campus.

"The focus of the Tech Summit is to benefit from the insight, power and years of experience of the leading technology company in the nation, Microsoft, and to use that resource as a way to improve governmental processes," stated Mr. Hall. "Throughout the week, we will be hearing from the leaders of various agencies about the challenges that they face and how, through technology, those challenges can be addressed."
