The Community Foundation of the Virgin Islands has announced that it has awarded more than $336,000 in summer program grants to twenty-five USVI organizations to support a variety of programs serving children and older youth throughout the territory.

Of the total, more than $137,000 was distributed throughout the St. Thomas/St. John district and more than $152,000 on St. Croix. In addition, $47,000 was designated for territory-wide programs.

Funding priority was focused on applicants who were able to demonstrate the ability to serve children of lower-income families, essential workers, and other families experiencing Covid-related challenges.

"While virtual, in-person, and hybrid programming were all considered, we are pleased to announce that a majority of the summer programs and camps receiving funding were able to find safe ways to serve children in a full-day in-person format," said CFVI President Dee Baecher-Brown. "Ultimately, that was our hope all along, especially given how much the pandemic has disrupted and changed everything over the past year or so," she said.

Organizations were able to apply for funding to support operational costs and/or costs associated with providing scholarships for students. Grants ranged from $1,500 for scholarships up to $29,812 for operational costs.
