

Image not found or type unknown

Today is Deadline to Apply for Black Caucus Foundation's 2023 Spring Internship, Plaskett Says

Community Center / Published On November 23, 2022 05:32 AM /

Staff Consortium November 23, 2022

Image not found or type unknown

Washington DC, USA - March 9, 2018: Congressional Black Caucus Foundation building office, entrance with sign, stairs, staircase, steps. By. GETTY IMAGES

Delegate to Congress Stacey Plaskett is encouraging eligible Virgin Islanders to apply for the Congressional Black Caucus Foundation's 2023 Spring Internship, whose application deadline is today.

The congresswoman said the programs provide "an incredible opportunity for young black professionals and college students to gain valuable work experience and knowledge that will foster important professional relationships and create avenues to success."

Through these internships, individuals will be provided guidance and instruction from skilled experts about the process, development, and implementation of national policies from Capitol Hill to federal field offices, she said.

Each internship is designed to meet the unique needs of different career focus areas. For example, the State Farm Communications program focuses on building a comprehensive skill set in press and media relations on Capitol Hill, said Ms. Plaskett. Find the application here.

The Emerging Leaders Internship Program, sponsored by Walmart, seeks to educate young leaders who are interested in fostering meaningful and lasting change in both Washington D.C. and their local communities. Lastly, the Pathways to C-Suite Program pairs participants with high level executives from the private sector who provide knowledge on the development of public policy and corporate America.

"I encourage all interested to take advantage of these opportunities and apply today," Ms. Plaskett said.